THE STREET WE WERE "Three cheers for gallant Franklin Pierce."

"Three cheers for gallant King." Three times Three for Winfield Scott!!! Tune, -"Wait for the Wagon."

'Tis three times three of merry cheers We'll give for gallant Scott, Our noble hero of renown, Though Locos love him not. We'll sing his fame in story-From Queenstown's bloody height, From Fort George to Fort Erie,

And Lundy Lane's dark night. Wait for the White House, Wait for the White House, Wait for the White House, The Locos sing for Pierce and King-

The Whigs for a leader brave, Who never turned or flinched in fight, But fought for a victor's grave. He sought the war for his country's wrong, And proudly stood the battle; When strife was fierce his nerve was strong, Nor shook at war's dread rattle.

Wait for the White House, Wait for the White House, Wait for the White House, Bullet brave Scott. We ne'er forget the stormy days,

At the Castle of Juan, When "Fuss and Feathers" towered high, And marked out every plan. The line of glory opens wide Through Cerro Gordo's pass. And fill a page of our country's pride,

With Molino and Contreras. Wait for the White House, Wait for the White House, Wait for the White House,

War-worn Scott. Can we forget the brave old man, Who scorned the Aztec throne, Who gave a life of toil and strife For freedom, friends and home? No! Let them sing for Pierce and King, Our grateful hearts will not;

Nor will we cease till we shall bring Our honest hearted Scott-Up to the White House, Up to the White House. Up to the White House, Columbia's WINFIELD SCOTT.

Aristotle was a tremendous worker; he took little sleep, and was constantly retrenching it. He had a contrivance by which he awoke early, and to awake was with him to commence work. Demosthenes passed three mouths in a cavern by the sea-side, in labouring to overcome the detects of his voice .-There he read, studied and declaimed.

Rabelals composed his "Life of Gargamen at Ballay, in the company of Roman cardinals, and under the eyes of the Bishop of Paris. La Fontaine wrote his tables chiefly under the shade of a tree, and sometimes by the side of Racine and Boileau. Pascal wrote most of his "Thoughts" on little scraps of paper, at his by-moments. Fenelon wrote his "Telemachus" in the Palace of Versailles, at the Court of the Grand Monarque, when discharging the duties of tutor to the Dauphin. That a book so thoroughly democratic should have issued from such a source, and been written by a priest, may seem surprising. De Quensay first promulgated his notion of universal freedom of person and trade, and of throwing all taxes on the land-the germ, perhaps, of the French Revolution-in the boudoir of Madame de Pompadour! Luther, when studying, always had his dog lying at his feet-a dog he had brought from Wartburg, and of which to bed till after midnight. Sometimes he was very fond. Music was his invariable solace at such times. Indeed, Luther did not hesitate to say, that after theology music was the first of arts .--"Music," said be, "is the art of the prophets; it is the only other art, which like theology, can calm the agitation in its meditations over the strange wave of the soul, and put the devil to flight." Sometimes, in his fits of inspiration, he would bandage his eyes, throw himself upon the sofa, and dictate to his wife, who almost worshipped his genius. Thus he would pass whole days, dictathe time when his Indian slave was ting to her his great tragedies; his wife scarcely ventured to speak, almost afraid to breathe. Afterwards, when a tragedy was finished, he would call in his sister Martha, and submit it to her judgement; as Moliere used to consult his old housekeeper about the comedies he had newly written.

Racine composed his verses while walking about, reciting them in a loud voice. One day, when thus working at his play of "Mithridates," in the Tuileries Gardens, a crowd of workmen gathered around him, attracted by his gestures; they took him to be a madman about to throw himself into the basin. On his return home from such walks, he would write down scene by scene, at first in prose, and when he had thus written it out, he would exclaim-"My tragedy is done," considering the lressing of the acts up in verse as a ve-

MULTUM IN PARVO- (Much in Little.) The following will be read, believed. and remembered. It is what we call "truth condensed." The time is at hand when a violation of the physical laws is to be regarded as no less sinful than the violation of the moral laws.

violation. Man must know himself to comprehend nature; he must study nature to understand himself; his highest comprehension of God comes from his knowledge of himself, nature, and their relations to each other.

The study of man and nature is the study of health.

MARRIAGE.

HAPPINESS AND COMPETENCE.

WHY IS IT ? That we behold many females, scarce in the meridian of sife broken in health and spirits with a complication of diseases and ailments, depriving them of the power for the enjoyment of life at an age when physical health, buoyancy of spirits, and happy serenity of mind, arising from a condition of health, should be predominant.

Many of the causes of her sufferings at first—perhaps years before, perhaps during girthood, or the first years of marriagewere in their origin so light as to pass unnoticed, and of course neglected.

IN AFFER TRAPS

IN AFTER YEARS, When too late to be benefitted by our knowledge, we look back and mourn, and regret the full consequences of our ignorance. What would we not often give to possess, in early life, the knowledge we obtain in after years! And what days and nights of anguish we might not have been spared, if the knowledge was timely possessed. It is

MELANCHOLY AND STARTLING To behold the sickness and suffering endured by many a wife for many years, from causes simple and controllable, easily, emedied—or better still,—not incurred, if every

WIFE AND MOTHER Possessed the information contained in a little volume, (with at the reach of all) which would spare to herself YEARS OF MISERY,

And to her husband the constant toil and anxiety of mind, necessarily devolving upon him from aickness of the wife, without giving him the opportunity of acquiring that competence which his exertions are entitled, and the possession of which would secure the happiness of himself, wife, and children. SECURE THE MEANS OF HAPPINESS By becoming in time possessed of the knowledge, the want of which has caused the sickness and poverty of thousands. In view of such consequences, no wife or mother is exensable if she neglect to avail herself of that knowledge in respect to herself, which would spare her much suffering, be the means of happiness and prosperity to her husband, and confer upon her children that blessing above all price—healthy bodies, with healthy minds. That knowledge is contained in a little work entitled

RICHMOND, August 13-31-6m. THE DEATH OF ADONES. His sunny locks,

On the edge of a pathless desert of trees, and earest the foot of Olympus, sat the queen of beauty and of love, with her golden tresses unbound, and her matchless countenance buried within the palms of her milk white hands, and sobbing as if her fond immortal heart would break. Beside her was laid The dead body of Adonis, his face half hidden beneath the floating fall of her hair, as she bent over him and wept. Beyond them lay the stiffened bulk of the grim and grisly Boar, his hideous jawa flecked with blood and foam, and his terrible tusks glittering like the heads of pointed spears as they stood out, sharp and white, in the unclouded sunset. The attractions of the chase had doomed the beautiful Adonis to an early death. and consigned the lovely Venus to an endless age massuaged grief; both of which could so easily have been avoided, had the Legal and truly popular

The expenses attending the reclamation of swampy or boggy lands, together with the erroneous opinions which many entertain in regard to the ability of such reclaimed lands to produce abundant crops, are thought by many to be sufficient reasons for neglecting their renovation.
